RISK RATING

Equity and property investments are volatile by nature and subject to potential capital loss. For credit and income instruments, while unlikely, capital loss may also occur due to an event like the default of an issuer.

FUND OBJECTIVE

The Balanced MultiFund aims to provide moderate levels of growth with moderate levels of risk and volatility over the medium to longer-term.

It is anticipated that the Balanced MultiFund will achieve a return of 3-month LIBID + 1% to 3% in the currency of the relevant share class over a rolling 3 to 5 year period.

To achieve the investment objective, the portfolio invests across a range of asset classes within a strategic and tactical asset allocation framework designed to maximise diversification benefits. An absolute and relative valuation-based approach underpins this framework, resulting in a multilayered process to facilitate disciplined decision-making and risk management.

The Balanced MultiFund is suitable for clients with an investment time horizon of 3 to 5 years. Investing in the fund involves a risk to capital in order to achieve the desired return.

INVESTMENT MANAGER COMMENTARY

MARKET COMMENTARY

Nedgroup Investments (IOM) Ltd
Investment Manager and Distributor

July was generally a positive month for investors as central banks confirmed their bias to ease monetary policy. Whilst the ECB restricted itself to statements suggesting the possibility that interest rates could be cut, the Federal Reserve actually took action by lowering rates by 0.25% on July 31st. This change in tack reflected growing concerns about weak economic data and that any failure in the US-China trade talks could further undermine global growth.

Whilst the US-China trade talks resumed, there were little signs of any real progress on the difficult issues of technology transfer and intellectual property rights. The fundamental problem is that the US-China trade war is not just about trade imbalances. In the bigger picture, it can also be seen as a new cold war between the US and China for economic dominance, where the weapon of choice just happens to be trade. For now at least, the truce is holding, although it is doubtful that the US and China will find it easy to settle their differences.

July saw the Q2 earnings season in full flow. By the end of the month it was clear that profits have been much better than expected in the US and a little stronger than forecasted in Europe. With 70 percent of S&P 500 companies reporting over the month, 60 percent beat on sales whilst 78 percent posted better than expected earnings (which were +5.3% ahead of forecasts). In Europe, 68 percent of companies in the Bloomberg European 500 Index reported in July, with 57 percent exceeding sales forecasts and 57 percent also surprising on earnings (which were +2.8% higher). Whilst the actual numbers reported were positive, forward guidance from managements was more cautious, which served to remove some of the shine.

Over the month we saw confirmation that Boris Johnson would replace Theresa May as the UK's Prime Minister. His apparent determination to take a harder line with the EU on Brexit has increased the risk of a "no deal" and further undermined investor confidence in UK assets and sterling. The scene is now set for a showdown between the UK and the EU over Johnson's demands that the Irish back-stop is dropped from the withdrawal agreement. Johnson also seems set on a collision course with the UK parliament, which remains opposed to a "no deal" exit. Whatever the outcome, it seems likely the uncertainty around Brexit is only going to increase in the short term.

Equities advanced, with the MSCI AC World Index rising +4.2% in sterling terms, helped by a sharp drop in the pound against most other currencies. At the market level, the US (+5.5%) was the strongest performer amongst the majors, whilst Europe ex UK (+1.9%), Asia ex Japan (+2.1%), the UK (+2.1%) and Emerging Markets (+2.7%) all underperformed. Returns were mixed at the sector level, with the best performers being Information Technology (+6.9%) and Communication Services (+6.4%), whilst the biggest laggards included Energy (+1.2%) and Materials (+1.2%). In terms of style, Growth (+5.0%) once again outpaced Value (+3.5%), whilst there was little to choose between Larger Companies (+4.2%) and Smaller Companies (+4.3%).

Fixed income markets also rewarded investors, with declining yields driving positive returns across all sectors. Over the month, the JP Morgan Global Government Bond Index posted a return of +0.6%, whilst the ICE Merrill Lynch Global Corporate Investment Grade Index gained +0.9%, the ICE Merrill Lynch Global High Yield Index rose +0.6% and the JP Morgan Global Emerging Market Bond Index advanced +1.1% (all hedged to sterling).

Commodities returns were positive, but largely because of the currency effect, with the Bloomberg Commodities Index gaining +3.2%. The strongest sub-sectors were Industrial Metals (+5.4%), Gold (+5.0%) and Crude Oil (+4.2%), with only Agriculture (-1.4%) delivering a loss over the period.

In the foreign exchange markets, the British pound (-4.4% versus the US dollar) was weak against most currencies as Boris Johnson (the UK's new Prime Minister) chose to adopt a harder stance on Brexit. This only served to increase investor concern over the potential for a "no deal" outcome. Elsewhere, the dollar was generally strong against most currencies, rising by +2.7% versus the euro, +0.9% against the yen and +1.8% relative to the Swiss franc.

(Notes: All monthly data is quoted in sterling terms unless otherwise stated).

PORTFOLIO COMMENTARY

The Nedgroup Investments Balanced MultiFund rose by +1.7% during July.

Within equities, the best performing active funds were Morgan Stanley Global Brands (+4.1%) and Allianz Global Small Cap (+4.0%). Morgan Stanley benefited from its more defensive sector exposure, whilst Allianz's performance mostly came through from good stock selection within the small cap universe. At the other end of the spectrum, TT Emerging Markets Equity (+2.0%) and Dodge and Cox Global Stock (+1.9%) both lagged over the period due to their emerging market exposure.

NEDGROUP INVESTMENTS BALANCED MULTIFUND

July 2019

International Range

Within fixed income, falling government bond yields combined with the more “risk-on” environment to allow most areas to generate positive returns. Franklin Templeton Global Total Return (+1.4%) benefited from its exposure to emerging market local currency bonds, which rallied strongly over the period. Falling government bond yields and tighter spreads also allowed longer maturity investment grade credit funds to progress, as demonstrated by PIMCO Global Investment Grade (+0.6%). Finally, AXA US Short Duration High Yield (+0.3%) and Muzinich Short Duration High Yield (+0.2%) also delivered positive returns, mostly from harvesting the higher yield offered by their underlying bond holdings.

In other asset classes, Nedgroup Global Property (+4.6%) performed broadly in line with equity markets, with REITs enjoying strong support from declining interest rate expectations. However, portfolio exposure to UK commercial property was more mixed. BMO Commercial Property (+2.2%) recovered some ground lost in prior months over Brexit uncertainty and concern about the weakness of the UK retail sector, whilst the more defensive UK care homes, Impact Healthcare (+0.9%) and Target Healthcare (-2.2%) broadly offset each other. Having been extremely strong in the first half, infrastructure holdings detracted value, with The Renewables Infrastructure Group (-0.9%), Greencoat UK Wind (-1.6%), John Laing Environmental Assets (-1.7%), Greencoat Renewables (-2.2%) and 3i Infrastructure (-4.2%) all losing a little ground over the month. Finally, asset-backed lending added value, with GCP Asset Backed Income (+1.4%) and SQN Asset Finance Income Fund C-Shares (+1.1%) both posting decent gains in July.

Over the month we did not make any material strategy changes.

Note: All returns are quoted on a partially hedged or hedged to GBP basis.
